Bank Statement Threw Market Into a Fever.

STARTED OUT VERY STRONG

Prices Advanced at the Opening, but Closing Was Very Nervous.

The stock market was thrown into fever heat before noon by the appearance of the bank statement, which showed large impairment of cash re-seres, contrary to exectation. Some of the specialties which had mounted most buoyantly at from 2 to points chopped off their top prices, and the bear professionals attacked the market with great vigor, foreing the SquMation of some top-keavy accounts, but speculators railled their resources and prices recovered to a large extent. The closing was very feverish and unsettled.

Continued enthusiasm and increased activity marked the opening of the Stock Exchange to-day. Prices, after opening from 1-4 to 11-2 points higher, began move up and soon were advancing rap-

Trading was well distributed and the volume of business was enormous. Pacific Mail was the pre-eminent fea ture of the early market and gained 7 points after opening 1 point up, making a net gain of 8 points inside of the first American Tobacco and Reading 1st preferred were noticeably strong features, being up from 1-1-2 to 2 points in the first hour.

American Car & Foundry, Tennessee Coal & Irou and Union Pacific were not far behind these in point of gain or volumne of business.

Sharp advances were noticed throughout the entire industrial quarter and nearly one-half of the entire volume of business was in this list.

Railway shares were less active and much firmer, while tractions were dull, as a reaction had set lin. Their opening prices, however showed gains of 7-8 to 11-4 per cent above yesterday's close.

The bank statement coming on the creat of the speculative wave cast a chill on the market, by reason of the money market impairment shown. The specialities, which had risen most buoyantly, relapsed quite violently, the reaction extending to 2 and 3 points in some of the steel stocks and other fadustrials. There was a spasmodic raily then a renewed decidine. Hears covered antly, relapsed quite violently, the reaction extending to 2 and 3 points in some of the steel stocks and other industrials. She did not know how or where her husband had died; only that he had wandered away, tottering under the weight of years and slowly dying, and had been brought home dead. She could not be told the truth, for her highstrung, sensitive nature would not brook.

As she wept beside the body she forgave him all. Her only regret was that noon. At the same time Mrs. Cecilia Lynch, known to the theatrical world as Queente Vassar, obtained in Trenton an absolute divorce from William P. Lynch, Mrs. Lynch's son, for desertion. Miss Vassar was formerly married to Harry Kernell, a comedian.

Mrs. Lynch is ill and the news of her husband's death was kept from her, as her physicians said the shock might kill her.

Mrs. Lynch had not spoken to her husband in fourteen years.

For years John Lynch had been under the care of two trained nurses at his home, 158 West Thirty-fourth street. He was not allowed to go out alone, but Thursday afternoon he said he wanted to take a walk and while an attendant was preparing to accessipany him he cluded him and escaped to the street. The police were notified.

Lynch was found in Broadway, near Seventeenth street, where he had failen unconscious. He was father.

At the Lynch Home.

In the front parior of the Lynch residence a handsome, old-fashioned brownstone mansion, the shrivelled, shrunch body of John Lynch lay to-day, at peace for the first time in many years, for he was an irritable man in life, uneasy and petulant.

When the sunlight came into the room and dimmed the candles that surrounded the casket Mrs. Lynch, the wife, entered and wept beside the body of her husband.

In the Supreme Court of Brooklyn today was told a story of domestic infelicities and a mother's scheme to force her fifteen-year-old daughter into an alilance with a man she did not love.

These discords and the daughter's statement that her mother was responsible for her marriage at the tender are of fifteen were brought out in an application for counsel fees and alimony by Mrs. Sadie Van Wart Waring, formerly of Paterson, N. J.

Mrs. Waring makes statutory charges and says that the acts were committed in the Lake View Hotel, Paterson, N. J., of which her husband, George B., is owner.

Waring filed a general denial of the charges brought by his wife, and makes sounter charges of a similar character. In his affidavit Waring said that among other credible witnesses to sus-
